

Who are we?

We are volunteers (we do not get paid) helped by a small group of paid staff.

What do we do?

We look at health and adult social care in care homes, hospitals, doctors, dentists, chemists (pharmacies) and others.

We listen to the views of people who use health and social care services and their carers.

We involve them in our work.

We want people who use services and their carers to help us.

Finding out if it is easy for you to get services and if services work well for you.

What can you do to help?

You can tell us what you think of health and social care services.

You can do this by meeting with us, talking to us on the phone, writing to us or by visiting our website.

What do we do with the information you give us?

The information we get from you helps us decide how well health and adult social care is doing for people in the area.

We tell the people who run health and social care services how they can make it better.

You can also come to LINK meetings.

We will send you a newsletter every month.
